

Cookie policy

A cookie is a file that is downloaded to your computer when you access certain websites. Cookies enable a website to store and retrieve information about the browsing habits of users or their computer and, depending on the information they contain and the way they are used, they can be employed to recognise users.

WHAT TYPES OF COOKIES DOES THIS WEBSITE USE?

Depending on who manages it, these can be:

- First-party cookies: They are sent to the users' terminal from a computer or domain managed by the website publisher, from which the service requested by the user is provided.
- Third-party cookies: They are sent to the users' terminal from a machine or domain that is not managed by the editor, but by another entity that processes data collected through cookies.

According to how long they remain enabled:

- Session cookies: They are a type of cookie designed to collect and store data while the user accesses a website. They usually store information that is only used to maintain the provision of the service requested by the user on a single occasion (e.g. a list of purchased products).
- Persistent cookies: Persistent cookies store data in the terminal and can be accessed and processed for a period defined by the cookie's controller, which can range from a few minutes to several years.

According to purpose:

- Technical cookies: They allow the user to browse through a website, platform or application and use different options or services in it, for example, control traffic and data communication, identify the session, access restricted sections, remember the items that comprise an order, carry out the purchase of an order, request registration or participation in an event, use security elements while browsing, store contents to play videos or sound or share content through social networks.

- Personalisation cookies: They allow the user to access the service with some predefined general characteristics based on a number of criteria in the user's terminal, such as the language, the type of browser used to access the service, the regional configuration from where you access the service, etc.
- Analytical cookies: They allow the controller to monitor and analyse the behaviour of the website's users. The information collected through this type of cookies is used to measure the activity of the website and to create user browsing profiles, for the purpose of introducing improvements based on the analysis of visitor usage data.
- Advertising cookies: They allow the publisher to manage as efficiently as possible the advertising space included in a website, application, or platform from which the requested service is provided, based on criteria such as the published content and frequency of displays.
- Behavioural advertising cookies: They allow the publisher to manage as efficiently as possible the advertising space included in a website, application, or platform from which the requested service is provided. These cookies store information on the behaviour of users obtained through the continuous observation of their browsing habits, which allows to display advertising based on their specific profile.
